

My question is concerning our mass faxing to a certified current customer list that has been developed by including a line at the bottom of the page that directs the recipient to simply call us to be removed from the list. Our list has already been "cleaned up" to eliminate those customers that requested removal. Is it still against the law to fax information to these established contacts?